Great Works Seminars

Along with its roles as a residential research center for interdisciplinary scholarship in the humanities, the Fox Center for Humanistic Inquiry develops and coordinates humanities programming across the Emory campus. A major component of this effort is the Great Works Seminars, a new initiative, funded by a Challenge Grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities. In these seminars, reading groups study the classic works of philosophy, literature, history, music, and the visual and dramatic arts.

Members of the public will join Emory faculty and students in these groups, which will generally meet once a month during the academic semester. Programs for these groups are a combination of individual presentations, group discussions, occasional outside speakers, and other academic formats the participants may find useful in furthering their intellectual mission. All seminars in the Great Works Series will be approved by the Fox Center Executive Committee.

If you would like to participate in one of the Seminars, or would like to propose a Seminar for Spring or Fall 2010, please contact the Fox Center at phone 404-727-6424 or email at chi@emory.edu.

We are grateful to the National Endowment for the Humanities for its support of this program. Any views, findings, conclusions or recommendations expressed in these seminars do not necessarily reflect those of the National Endowment for the Humanities.
